The six-day, 60th anniversary Washington International Horse Show (WIHS) kicked off on Tuesday, October 23, at the Capital One Arena in the heart of Washington, D.C. Tuesday's opening day of competition featured the start of the professional and amateur hunter divisions, as well as year-end championships for child and adult hunter riders.

Earning wins in the $10,000 WIHS Children's Hunter Championship and the $10,000 WIHS Adult Hunter Championship were Lily Pollin riding Pura Vida and Allison Cederberg on Zero Tolerance, respectively.

Twenty-six entries contested the $10,000 WIHS Children's Hunter Championship, with the top 12 from an opening round returning in reverse order of their standings for a second round. At the conclusion of the first round, Pollin sat in fifth place aboard Pura Vida with a score of 82. However, a score of 86 over the second, Alan Lohman-designed course shot her to the top of the leaderboard with a 168 overall score.

"It means everything to win. I love [WIHS] because I've been coming here and watching my mom since I was really little. I think it's so cool to be able to ride in the city and at the Capital One Arena!" - Lily Pollin

When Allison Cederberg heard the final scores of the $10,000 WIHS Adult Hunter Championship, she knew she had won and threw her arms around the neck of her mount, Zero Tolerance. Cederberg, 22, hails from Fort Collins, CO, and earned a score of 168 to take the tri-color riding her own 14-year-old Dutch Warmblood gelding by Roven during their first-ever appearance at WIHS.

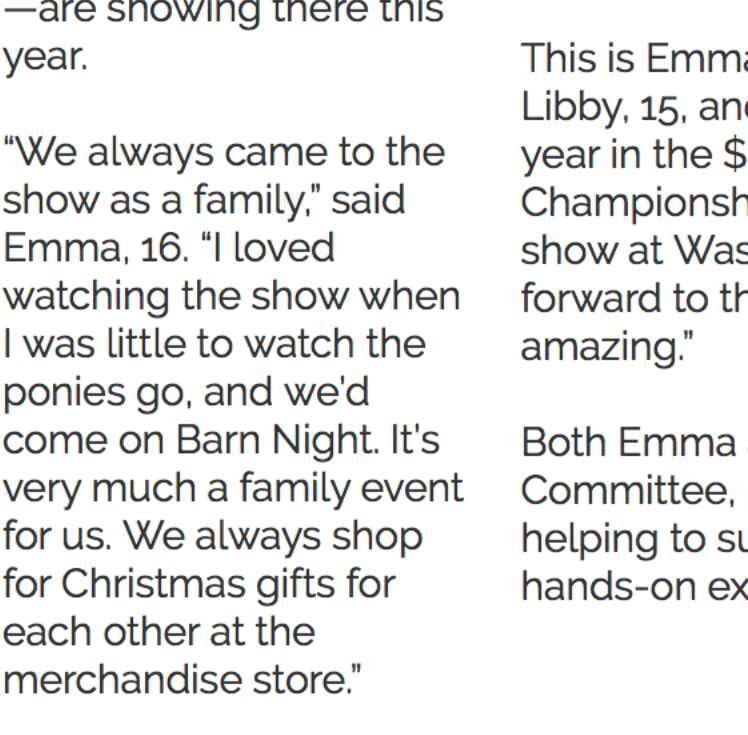

Cederberg was one of the 12 riders who qualified to return for a second round from an original starting field of 26. Coming back for the final course, she sat in first by a narrow margin, and she held on for the win, with Britta Lippert of Sea Girt, NJ, finishing a single point behind on a 167 score riding Indigo for owner Gianna Zanghi. For the win, Cederberg was presented with the Diane Wade Memorial Award.

Addie Jabin of Columbia, MD, took third with a score of 160 in the irons of her own Atrex, while Clare Karlovec of Cleveland, OH, finished fourth riding her own Milord du Valon to a score of 159. Lydia Davidson of Fairfax, VA, rounded out the top five with her own Park Avenue on a final tally of 155.

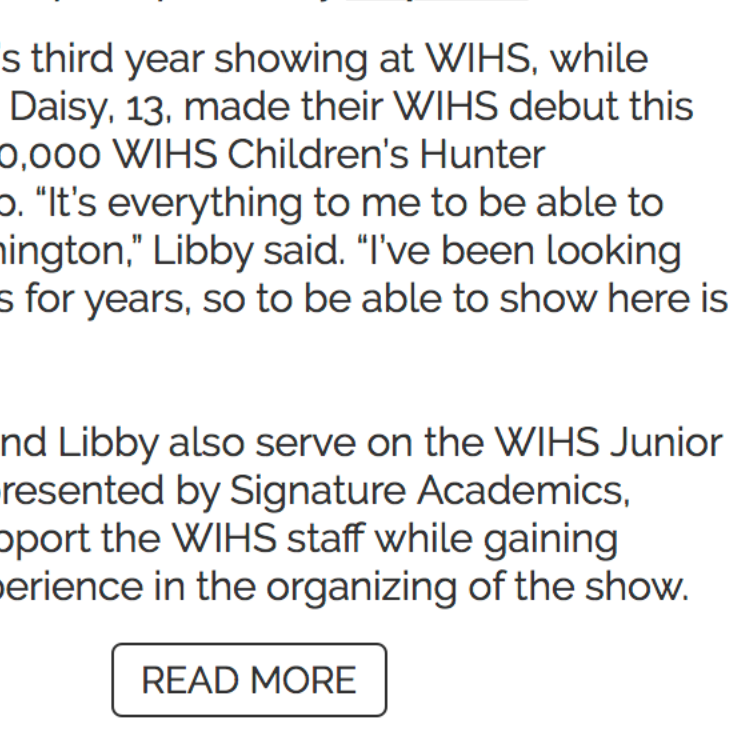

"To win here is amazing. To be here is amazing, and Zero was incredible. He walked in [Capital One Arena] like he had been doing it his whole life. Everything came up really well, and he jumped amazing. That's all you can really ask for." - Allison Cederberg

On the Rail: WIHS is a Special Destination for the Bishop Family

The Washington International Horse Show (WIHS) is definitely a family affair for the Bishops. The family from Washington, D.C. has been coming to spectate at WIHS for more than 10 years and all three sisters—Emma, Libby and Daisy—are showing there this year.

"We always came to the show as a family," said Emma, 16. "I loved watching the show when I was little to watch the ponies go, and we'd come on Barn Night. It's very much a family event for us. We always shop for Christmas gifts for each other at the merchandise store."

This is Emma's third year showing at WIHS, while Libby, 15, and Daisy, 13, made their WIHS debut this year in the $10,000 WIHS Children's Hunter Championship. "It's everything to me to be able to show at Washington," Libby said. "I've been looking forward to this for years, so to be able to show here is amazing."

Both Emma and Libby also serve on the WIHS Junior Committee, presented by Signature Academics, helping to support the WIHS staff while gaining hands-on experience in the organizing of the show.
