Sharon and her "King of Kings and Lord of Lords" painting
Over the past 19 years, renowned artist Sharon Lynn Campbell has painted hundreds of portraits of Olympic horses and riders, top hunters, pets, celebrities and for major horse shows. "I paint around the clock in order to keep up with my clients' portraits," said Sharon, who is 100 percent commissioned with clients worldwide.

For years Sharon worked on a portrait for herself. "I've been wanting to complete this portrait for such a long time and I'm finally done," she said. "I think it's very exciting to bring my love of horses and my faith together in one portrait titled 'King of Kings and Lord of Lords.'"

When it was unveiled, people gasped then asked if prints would be offered. "I love the idea of my painting as a print so it blesses many people," Sharon said. When asked what the future holds, Sharon replied, "My vision is to build and open a spectacular gallery someday. I really want my artwork to bless as many people as possible, whether it's through an original painting, a print or even my painting on a T-shirt."
