How YouTube, WIHS, BarnManager, and Stacia Klein Madden Led to Two Sisters' Dream Weekend!

Within 30 seconds of watching the Sisters Horsing Around, it's easy to see why the BarnManager team enjoyed meeting sisters Emily, 21, and Sarah Harris, 15, in August 2018 at the Laura Graves "Dressage for Jumping" clinic, presented by BarnManager and the Washington International Horse Show \(WIHS\); their kind, appreciative, and enthusiastic personalities are contagious!

It's those personalities, the sisters' YouTube channel, and the clinics put on by BarnManager and WIHS that – eight months later – led to what Emily Harris said was the "best weekend of her life" with Stacia Klein Madden at Beacon Hill Show Stables.

Before we get to that though, let's backtrack to the Laura Graves clinic. Emily, Sarah, and their mom, Julie Harris, made the three-and-a-half-hour trip from their hometown in Altavista, VA, to the Aldie, VA, clinic, and it's there that they also met WIHS president Vicki Lowell.

Six Ways to Make Horse Showing More Affordable

Horse show entry and office fees, transportation and travel expenses, tack and equipment costs, training fees, and grooming and braiding charges can be enough to make many an adult amateur – no matter the discipline – contemplate a second job or a steady diet of ramen noodles to offset expenses.

Fortunately, while the entirely inexpensive horse show may remain elusive, there are ways to greatly reduce your expenses and make horse showing more affordable.

Here are six tips that could help you decrease your costs this show season!

1) Identify your goals.

Before heading to a horse show, think realistically about you and your horse's level of competitiveness and what you hope to accomplish throughout the show season.

2) Submit your entries on time – or even well in advance.

Many horse shows penalize riders with an added fee for entering a horse show beyond a set entry date, while some others even offer reduced rates for early entries.

Submitting your entries on time or in advance is a simple way to save money.

3) Be well organized and prepared for horse show day.

No one wants to have to purchase new gloves or spurs at a horse show when they know that they have perfectly good ones sitting at home, and having to purchase any tack or equipment at the horse show can be a good way to quickly exceed your budget!

Make a thorough packing check list (fun fact: you can do this within BarnManager!). Be sure to include any items that you might need at a horse show that you might not typically use at home like ear plugs, Show Sheen, or other show grooming products.
