It's a Family Affair in $30,000 World Equestrian Center Grand Prix

At the first week of the Midwest Indoors series at World Equestrian Center – Wilmington, it was a family affair in the $30,000 World Equestrian Center Grand Prix. David Beisel of Goshen, Ohio, took the win riding his own Essince W, a 12-year-old KWPN gelding by Chacco-Blue x Burggraaf NV. Second place went to Beisel's daughter, Izzy Beisel, riding Ammeretto, a 16-year-old KWPN stallion by Numero Uno x Goodtimes owned by David Beisel.

David Beisel and Essince W went first in the jump-off and ended up as the only double clear in the class, stopping the timers in 36.613 seconds for the win. Izzy Beisel and Ammeretto followed, and while she bested her father's jump-off time in 35.284 seconds, four jumping faults put her into second place.

The father-daughter duo were two of three in the jump-off, with Lani Hutchison riding Diane P. Masters's Light Show to third place with eight faults in 34.651 seconds.

Sunday Spotlight: Amber Ashba

This week's Sunday Spotlight shines on Amber Ashba, an adult amateur rider, attorney, and total girl boss from Cleveland, Ohio. Amber is a familiar face at WEC and you can find her running back and forth from her vendor space to the show arena to compete with her horses. We caught up with Amber during the Midwest Indoors I show to chat about her small business – Equestrian AF Apparel, her professional career and how she got her start in horses.

Tell us a little about yourself

"I'm 29 years old and am a full time attorney. I am an amateur rider and I own Equestrian AF Apparel. I was trying to make some extra money for my horse habits and this business idea kind of just fell into my lap. I made a shirt for myself and posted it on Instagram. Everyone wanted it... that is how I got started in the t-shirt business. My two horses are Rio and Leo. I live in Cleveland and I ride with Cleveland Equestrian. I have been with them for a year and a half."
