THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

Developing a successful grand prix horse is a huge accomplishment, but to have one that you bred yourself, from a sire and dam you rode, is a rare feat. For Georgina Bloomberg, this is her homebred, Manhattan, an 11-year-old American Warmblood gelding (Metropolitan—Lumina 2, Lancer III) that she's brought up the ranks to the top level of show jumping. Bloomberg showed Metropolitan to the CSI5* level and Lumina 2 in the amateur-owner jumper classes.

THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

Five years ago Ilan Ferder came to Erynn Ballard with a proposition. For her entire professional career, Ballard had worked at her family's Looking Back Farm in Tottenham, ON, splitting her time between the jumper and the hunter ring, but Ferder's offer to join his team was enticing.

"You get to a stage where maybe your priorities change a little," said Ballard, 41. "In Canada, there are not very many big owners that support just the sport, and it was hard to do the level that I wanted at home. And he gave me an opportunity that I couldn't turn down. So I decided if I didn't do it then maybe I was never going to get the chance."

Understanding the Role of Flexion Tests in a Pre-Purchase Exam

THE PLAID HORSE

If you are a horse owner, you are probably familiar with flexion tests. Most pre-purchase and lameness exams involve a vet performing flexion tests on the horse. This type of test involves a veterinarian applying stress or pressure to various joints for a brief period of time and then immediately trotting the horse away. While the horse is trotting, the vet observes the effects of the flexion test on the horse's gait and movement.

We spoke with Dr. Scott Swerdlin, President of Palm Beach Equine Clinic, to learn more about flexion tests and factors that should be considered when performing them, especially for a pre-purchase exam.

A BIT OF GOOD NEWS

A Mother's Journey Into the Show World With Her Horse-Loving Son

THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

I vividly remember passing the United States Equestrian Team Foundation exit off Route 206 in Gladstone, NJ, as a child. My parents never stopped there, but my heart yearned to see the magnificent equine athletes that resided inside. Although I loved horses, they could not have been further from my life in middle-class suburbia. My parents did not have the financial resources for me to participate, and never in my wildest childhood dreams did I imagine that, 40-plus years later, my horse would spend a night there.

Georgina Bloomberg weighs in on the topic and explains what she would say to U.S. Congressional Representatives who have the power to save our horses, mules, and burros.
