Questions With: Nick Haness

THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

For years, Nick Haness watched the World Championship Hunter Rider (WCHR) Professional Final from the sidelines or on the live stream, hoping to someday compete. This year, he finally got his chance.

He came into the class, held October 7 at the Capital Challenge Horse Show in Upper Marlboro, MD, with the armband for the leading WCHR rider. The armband ended up bringing Haness good luck, and he came out on top in his WCHR Professional Final debut.

A Case for Revitalizing the Local Horse Show

THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

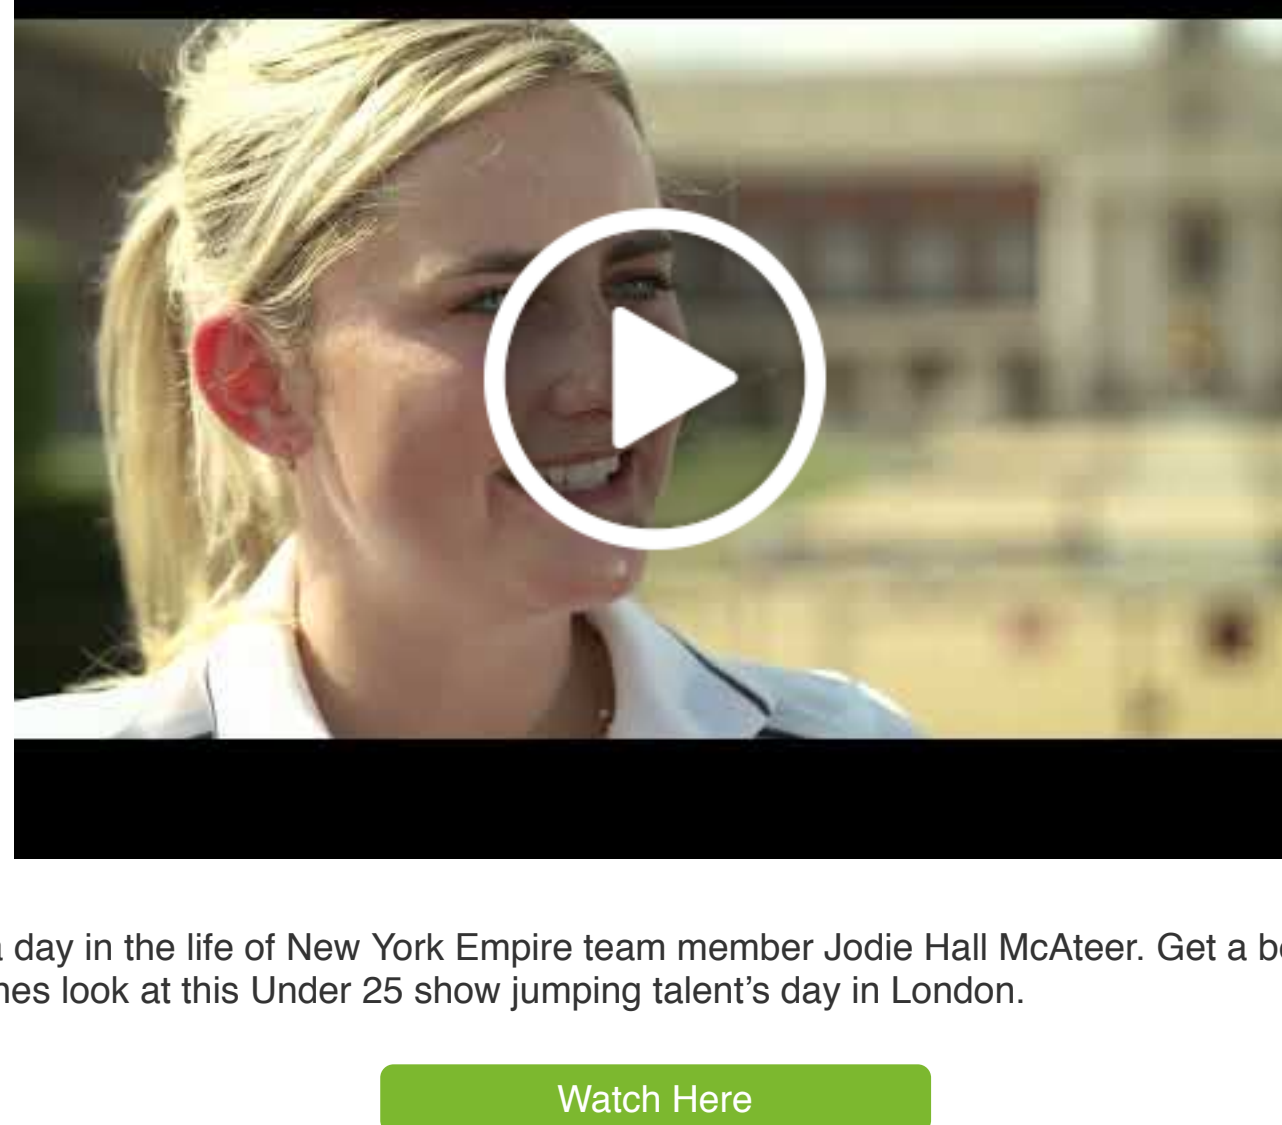

Before the advent of multi-month destination competitions, traveling to local and regional horse shows on different weekends was the backbone of equestrian sport in the United States. One-day "trailer-in" horse shows and two- or three-day competitions with some stabling were usually hosted by a local riding stable or farm and provided the horse and rider with unique opportunities for growth and development in a variety of locations throughout the show season while remaining accessible both financially and geographically.

Tips for Showing Indoors From WIHS Pros

PRACTICAL HORSEMAN

The fall season on the hunter/jumper circuit is synonymous with end-of-year championships, finals, and the "indoors" season. The nation's top athletes across hunters, jumpers, and equitation go head to head for some of the sport's most coveted awards.

We spoke with professional and amateur hunter and jumper riders, as well as a top equitation rider, who have had successful "indoors" seasons and who have all qualified and plan to compete at the 2022 Washington International Horse Show (WIHS) being held at The Show Place Arena, Prince George's Equestrian Center in Upper Marlboro, MD, running October 24-30.

BarnManager Pro Version Does the Hard Work, So You Can Get Back to the Horses

HORSE NETWORK

You know we love horse people. Horse people work hard. Horse people are fun (mostly). Horse people would do next to anything for their animals. But technologically savvy? Eh — not so much.

It goes without saying that whether you're the reincarnation of Steve Jobs or a total luddite in the tech department, managing a barn is no easy task. At a busy sales or training facility, there are horses, clients, and employees to organize; there are also health, training, and show records to manage. Not to mention scheduling appointments (eek) and billing (double eek) for all of the above.

A BIT OF GOOD NEWS

Rescue Horse Memphis No Longer Sings the Blues

HORSE NETWORK

Before he was one of 19 horses seized from a neglectful home in St. Mary's County, MD, Memphis was singing the blues. When he arrived at Days End Farm Horse Rescue (DEFHR) in Woodbine, MD, in January 2021, he was emaciated, had dermatitis across his topline, and was caked in mud from the midline down. Fortunately for the 14.3-hand gelding, he was about to get a second chance at finding a loving forever home.
