

Highlights From World Equestrian Center – Wilmington Winter Classic XVI

Kady Abrahamson (USA) and Any, owned by Abrahamson Equestrian LLC, were victorious in the $30,000 Top Bedding Grand Prix.

“Any is older, and she knows how to do everything. She is very spooky and weird about traffic and things next to jumps. She is a bit alert about everything. She likes it when the course is a bit thrown in her face. If not, she gets a little strong. It was quite nice, and everything came up quickly.”

Samantha Cooper and Ellen Malson's Nandino captured the top prize in the $15,000 USHJA National Hunter Derby 3' Open. The pair earned impressive scores of 94 and 98.

“I have been [riding Nandino] for 11 years now. It is really cool because I feel like a lot of professionals do not always have the opportunity to have a partnership for that long. To have him as my project, and to get to know him and form that partnership is just so special.”

Amy Krebs (USA) and her own Jobantos won the $10,000 WEC – Wilmington Futures Prix.

“I felt really confident after my win in the Welcome Stake. I had another horse earlier in the class so I had a better idea of the course and where I was going to go. I definitely made up time in the jump-off with the first inside turn. He will jump from anywhere so I really felt confident with the turn.”
