Horse Network "Good Things Come in Small Packages: Caring for a Mini"

Given their small stature and sweet, spunky personalities, miniature horses, or "minis," are often sought-after companions for regular-sized horses and other animals.

Yet, just because they're smaller doesn't mean they are easier keepers. Click the button to read about caring for these special equines in our monthly column on Horse Network.

Featured Horse of the Month: Finnegan

Six-year-old Quarter Horse gelding, 15.3hh

Finnegan, or "Finn," is a kind, in-your-pocket kind of guy. Finn loves playing with his herd mates and saying hello to everyone visiting his field. While he has navicular in both front feet, he is happy and comfortable being turned out barefoot 24/7 and is not on any medication. He is available for walk riding only or as a non-riding companion horse. Finn would also make a fantastic lead line or occasional pony-ride horse with his horse, confident demeanor.

Visit defhr.org/available-horses/ and email adopt@DEFHR.org for details on Finnegan.
