USET's Gala Events Raise More Than $2.4 Million Ahead of Paris Olympics

The United States Equestrian Team (USET) Foundation's two benefit galas in Wellington, FL, and Del Mar, CA, raised $2.4 million to support the U.S. equestrian teams on their journey to this summer's Olympic and Paralympic Games in Paris, France. The glitzy events included demonstrations from Olympic medalists, as well as live entertainment at the Wellington event, "Victory in Versailles," from Bruce Springsteen and Patti Scialfa. Both the Florida benefit and the Del Mar event, "Equestrians in Paris," featured lively bidding on the generously donated auction lots, which included a month of residential training with U.S. Dressage Chef d'Equipe Christine Traurig and Olympic silver medalist Sabine Schut-Kery in California, as well as a VIP concert experience with Bruce Springsteen at "Victory in Versailles," luxury vacation villas, and more.

Young Riders Learn From the Best During Horsemastership Clinic Week

Catch up on the 2024 USEF Horsemastership Clinic week, where the country's top young dressage and jumping athletes are invited to hone their skills by learning from the professionals. Hosted by Robert Dover, the dressage week saw aspiring young riders from across the country converge on Wellington to learn from Dover, Sarah Tubman, and Katie Duerrhammer. At the jumping clinic, riders participated in mounted clinics for flatwork, gymnastics, and jumping with such esteemed Olympians as Anne Kursinski and Beezie Madden, as well as learned stable management. The programs help to identify riders as potential future U.S. team athletes and provides them with a comprehensive educational experience to promote their development through the pathway to high performance sport.
