USET Foundation's Competition Partners Program Boosts High Performance Shows in 2026

Gladstone, NJ – The United States Equestrian Team (USET) Foundation is pleased to highlight the continued success and ongoing growth of its Competition Partners Program in 2026, celebrating the expansion of this impactful initiative.

The USET Foundation Competition Partners Program unites top horse shows across the country in support of a shared mission: ensuring that U.S. equestrian high performance teams and athletes have the resources they need to excel on the world's greatest international stages. These strategic partnerships continue to raise awareness about the vital role the USET Foundation plays in supporting U.S. equestrian sport, while also promoting key competitions and venues that provide critical development and championship opportunities for both developing and senior athletes.

As the philanthropic partner to US Equestrian (USEF), the USET Foundation's mission is to support the USEF High Performance Programs, including Pathway Programs that foster the development of up-and-coming talent. Through philanthropic contributions, USET Foundation grants and funding are directed to USEF to help meet the training, competition, travel, and educational needs of the United States' equine and human athletes and the teams that support them.

The 2026 competition calendar is especially significant. The Longines FEI Jumping World Cup™ Final and Zen Elite FEI Dressage World Cup™ Final will take place in Fort Worth, Texas, this spring, followed by the 2026 FEI World Championships in Aachen, Germany, this August, where six of the seven international equestrian disciplines will be featured at one of the sport's most iconic venues. These major championships serve as critical milestones on the pathway to the 2028 Los Angeles Olympic and Paralympic Games on home soil.

High performance horse show organizers interested in becoming a USET Foundation Competition Partner in 2026 are encouraged to reach out to alice@jumpmediallc.com to learn more about the in-kind partnership opportunities this powerful initiative offers. Support from Competition Partners helps sustain excellence today while building the path for tomorrow's champions.
